The LUDLOW Quarterly

A Newsletter For Ludlow Typograph Operators and Enthusiasts

Final Edition

This is last issue of the LUDLOW Quarterly. After two years producing this newsletter, I regretfully find I have developed too many other pressing demands on my time and energy and must devote all my attention to those activities.

Many subscribers may not know my profession is that of piano rebuilding and piano tuning. My enthusiasm for Ludlow typography remains undiminished, and complements a hobby of letterpress printing. This newsletter has ended, but the enthusiasm continues and, as in the past, I will continue to assist in any way I can those who are interested in or working with the Ludlow typograph.

I sincerely thank all subscribers for their support and the many very nice people who helped with technical advice and equipment. I especially thank Jim Parrish, Ludlow service technician and author of "The Ludlow Troubleshooting Guide" and many other Ludlow publications. Without his help and encouragement the newsletter would not have been possible.

If your subscription to the LUDLOW Quarterly does not end with this issue, enclosed you will find a check for the balance of your subscription. Advertisers will also find refund checks for their prepaid advertising. If there is an error in your refund, please contact me and I will make it right.

I hope you found issues of the new sletter to contain useful information, and that it was a help in your use of the ${\bf Ludlow}.$

> Thank you, Bill Simon

DE-PARTING LUDLOWS

Most things, for good reasons, eventually get scrapped. You could crush every single Chevrolet made after 1960 and improve our society, but we suffer a loss when a Ludlow machine goes. There are only a limited number of these great machines left.

Let's suppose you scrap a Ludlow. Perhaps you had an idiot move it, it fell off the truck, the frame cracked, the top broke off, and it is now dead. Scrap prices will generally return less than $25.00, but before you have the idiot haul it away, there are parts that can be saved that may save you hundreds of dollars and days of time when repairs are needed on another machine.

Here are some items you should try to save when scrapping a machine, listed under three levels of increasing salvaging effort.

Level 1 The quick, easy and obvious. The mold, its screws, and the close water connections. The bottom trim knife, every fuse in the box, plunger, motor belt, pump belt, safety key cap. The better the condition of the mouthpiece, the more important that you try to save it. If the machine will melt out, take the mouthpiece and plunger, then disconnect power and quickly pull the crucible heaters and sensing bulb.

Level 2 - More work, but generally worth doing because some of these parts can be real expensive to buy. You should already have the level one parts. If the machine wont melt-out, use a torch on the typemetal (it takes a while) and crucible around the mouthpiece, which must be removed hot. Avoid directing the torch flame onto the mouthpiece pot elements, or temperature sensing bulb stem. Severe damage can result to the parts you want to save. Get the motor and pulley, crucible cam roller assembly, heater solenoid, the entire rheostat control box for the throat and mouthpiece heaters. It is fragile, so handle gently and preserve the wires to the panel box. Get the on-off switch, mouthpiece and throat heaters, water pump, mouthpiece wiper assembly, delivery slide assembly, ejector blade, thermostat assembly table latch operating stud, stick stop, wood handle, plunger cam lever roller and stud, and every spring you can find rought.

Level 3 - "Go for it, you never know!
"Level 1 and 2 parts and virtually everything you can remove that you could ever conceivably use. The entire crucible assembly, entire electrical box, clutch mechanism, table parts, screws, rollers, cam followers, etc. From oil caps to screws.
Safety guards. Most of these parts you will never use.

Generally not worth saving, - the water tank, guards, gears, the main camshaft, table top and most table parts.

A Case for Speed

Gathering mats works much better if the case dividers don't get in the way. In standard wooden cases just line each section with 6 point leads or reglet, so that the height of the mats match the dividers. On the lowest row of sections, try 24 point material so mats are even with the frame. Then add 24 or 36 point quad blocks behind the mats to provide a big landing area on which to tap the pack. Everyone should have one of these speed cases, holding the body text of the day.

Put some sort of rug or rubber mat in the area of mat setting. Matrices inevitably will be dropped, and if they hit a concrete floor the corners get dinged up, which causes hairlines Merle Langley, of Marlboro Mats, travels all over the country buying mats and whole shops. He recently discovered someLudlow Company literature about training Ludlow operators and sent it in. Excerpts from the article follow.

From "Ludlow Training Program"

"A good rule for a Ludlow production craftsman is a slug a minute. The operator should be able to determine size and faces, gather mats, proofread. and cast within one minute '

"Place a cabinet on each side of your Ludlow. Reduce walking time to increase production. No one can produce while walking, distance increases errors "

"Make the Ludlow area well lighted and equipped with all necessary apparatus to complete any job handled. An operator should never have to leave the area to perform any work."

"Proofread and correct as type and slug are set and cast. Read mats as gathered, placed into the stick and redistributed "

"Assemble slugs as you cast, setting lines exactly as they appear on the copy. The finished job should be complete and ready to proof."

(Editors note - Gee, Lighten up guys!)

Deal of the Decade continues

The GREAT FONT CLEARANCE continues a hit longer as there are still some fonts left. Notice there are no prices listed. Make an offer! Fax a list of your spare fonts and perhaps we can make a trade, for I am seeking many fonts to fill in incomplete series. If you are interested please contact Bill Simon, (602)581-1748.
